I also discussed the appearance of [redacted] before the Committee. Mr. Newhouse indicated [redacted] statement was quite annoying to the staff and all around was a rather irresponsible statement. Mr. Newhouse noted in passing that [redacted] reference to an anti-Israeli organization was undoubtedly relating [redacted] and raised the question whether we had any evidence to support the theory that [redacted] may be working for another service as well as the [redacted]

[redacted] met with Mr. D. F. McGillicuddy, Professional Staff Member, Senate Subcommittee on Preparedness Investigating, as a follow up of Mr. Houston's briefing of Thursday, 27 June. I advised Mr. McGillicuddy that we held no information to substantiate the rumor that Soviet vessels are picking up supplies and material in Mexican ports for Cuba and that only one Soviet vessel, the IVAN POZONA, a Soviet dry cargo ship, had delivered a cargo of canned goods, trucks, tractors and scrappeers to Cuba January 1962. The only other Soviet vessels using Cuban ports are the Soviet fishing trawlers based in Cuba.
